From specialist designers to hardware suppliers, these are the names to know

Kitchen specialists

Krieder

Those who are in the market for a contemporary kitchen will find plenty of choice among Krieder's 24 collections, which combine a variety of materials and finishes, including gold oak and marble. As well as kitchens, the company offers solutions for a range of interiors – from bedroom storage to bathrooms. krieder.com

Poggenpohl

Over the past 130 years, luxury German brand Poggenpohl has become one of the leading names in contemporary kitchen design and it now has six showrooms in the UK. It is renowned for cutting-edge yet sophisticated design, such as '+Modo', in which the worktop seems to float above the base units. poggenpohl.com

Sola Kitchens

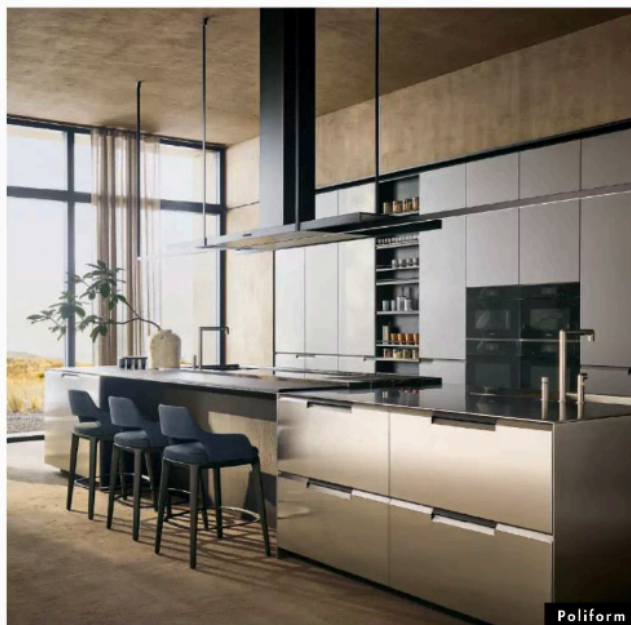

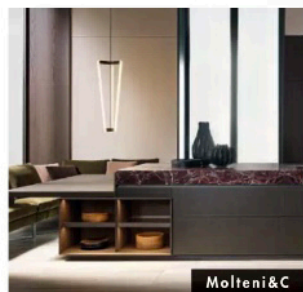

Founded in London by a Swede, this company has an emphasis on Scandinavian style and high-quality materials. Its kitchens are all handcrafted by teams of skilled makers in Britain and Sweden. While wood is a primary focus, its designs regularly play on interesting combinations of stones and metallics. Sola has three showrooms in London, including a flagship on Wigmore Street, W1. solakitchens.com

Martin Moore

Known for its elegant designs, Martin Moore specialises in the production of made-to-measure kitchens rooted in classic English furniture. Its collections include 'The New Deco' kitchen, which draws inspiration from craftsmanship of the 1930s, and 'The Architectural' collection, which is characterised by long elevations and rows of locker-style units overhead. martinmoore.com

Molteni&C

This Italian brand has become synonymous with fully customisable contemporary designs that are created with international names like Vincent Van Duysen. Molteni&C is also known for its technology expertise, not only in the traditional field of wood-working but in more innovative areas like metals. molteni.it/en

Plain English

Influenced by Georgian estate kitchens, this cabinetmaker has married traditionally crafted joinery with a modern sensibility for over 30 years. Its designs also include larders, boot rooms and laundry rooms, and all cabinetry is made in its Suffolk workshops. In addition to its flagship store on the Pimlico Road, SW1, it has showrooms in New York and Los Angeles. plainenglishdesign.co.uk

Neptune

This Wiltshire-based company takes its design cues from timeless pieces of antique furniture and natural materials. Alongside its built-in kitchen collections, which are made from solid timber and have a lifetime guarantee, it has also launched a new range of freestanding kitchen furniture and accessories. neptune.com

Poliform

The Italian furniture-maker is known for an innovative approach and chic, contemporary aesthetic. The 'Shape' design shown above exemplifies Poliform's approach: it is a super minimal, modular system that features recessed handles for a functional yet sleek effect. It comes in various wood and metal finishes. poliform.it

Pluck

Though its characteristic style might be pared back, Pluck is not short of boldness when it comes to its appealing colour options. These are applied to cabinets made in birch plywood in the company's London studio and workshop. A recent collaboration with the timber specialist Schotten & Hansen has resulted in naturally coloured Douglas Fir veneer finishes. pluck.co.uk
