

WOOD

Durable, long-lasting flooring with warmth and beauty

DINESEN

Creating bespoke timber flooring in the Danish town of Jels since 1898, Dinesen is motivated by a love of the inherent beauty of wood and a respect for nature. Using the best quality timber from its carefully tended, family-owned woodland, each tree is individually selected under responsible forestry practices so the area around it will continue to thrive. Choose from Douglas fir, pine, ash and four variants of oak in solid and engineered wood, with all planks characterised by specific grain patterns and celebrated for their link to the landscape.

HAYWOODS

With over 50 years of flooring know-how, this third-generation family-run company focuses on uniting aesthetics and innovation with the functional and long-lasting. The collection features 400 crafted wood flooring products in an impressive spectrum of colours, textures, grades, species and finishes, from classic boards in a variety of widths and finishes to Versailles and mansion weave patterns. Its FSC and PEFC certifications are a testament to its commitment to sustainability, which is at the forefront of everything it does.

Classic Versailles engineered oak floor panels by Knot & Grain

Casa Ambrose designed by architectural studio Plantea features Dinesen's Layers Douglas Classic flooring

KNOT & GRAIN

'Our new offering combines state-of-the-art technology with artisan craftsmanship, so every customer can create something unique,' says brand co-founder Natalie Mudd. Build your own engineered wood floor on the website by selecting the plank style, then choose the timber grade, thickness, colour, texture and finish, and voila – your perfect floor. Each durable piece is composed of a solid French oak veneer with a eucalyptus multi-ply core, and is made in the brand's Worcester workshop.

SCHOTTEN & HANSEN

Founded in Germany's Bavaria in 1984, Schotten & Hansen blends traditional craft with industry-leading engineering to create its hand-produced timber flooring. 'We feel enthusiasm for wood every day,' says CEO Bernhard Heinloth. The planks are available in an almost limitless line-up of colours thanks to the company's decades of research into transferring hues derived from plants or minerals onto wood.

TED TODD

Cheshire's Ted Todd dates back to 1993, with then 21-year-old graduate and founder Robert Walsh spending a summer restoring reclaimed pine floorboards in his parents' garden. Fast forward and the firm has a portfolio of over 250 designs over nine collections in a range of timbers, formats, tones, thicknesses and finishes. It was one of the first brands in Europe to become FSC certified (in 1997) and it offers a minimum 20-year guarantee on its floors.

TRUNK FLOOR

An Irish generational business, Trunk Floor uses expertise honed over the decades along with modern technology to produce its flooring in European oak (in a considered palette of finishes). Approaching all projects through an artisanal lens while manufacturing at scale, each is viewed holistically – floors are creatively made to measure so that the unique characteristics of the material are translated into the visual identity of every individual home.
